SAPD Completes Digging at 505 E. Harlan

Today, San Antonio Police have completed the process of digging for remains at 505 E. Harlan.

Officials have sent remains found at the site to a lab for analysis. Results are not expected for several months.

A search warrant was obtained on September 4th and digging began the next day after San Antonio officials were notified that a woman had claimed she had given birth when she was a teenager to a baby boy in 1967 and the baby was buried in the backyard.
